New Professors on Campus

By Michael J. Sharp
Co-editor-in-chief

Across
1. Little Mermaid’s love
5. Epics
10. 24 hour periods
14. Farm building
15. Wrinkle removers
16. After awhile
17. Foal

Down
18. Intended
19. Extinct bird
20. “Het ___”
22. Bible prof Heidi
23. Angelic ring
24. Lager
26. Before, poetically
27. Duo
29. Dragging on a cigarette
33. Frau’s husband
35. State capital
36. Alack’s partner
40. English prof Martha
41. Achey
42. Dead bolt
43. “The ___ Hour”
46. Dress
47. Professional
48. Ripe
52. Government worker
53. Adobe
56. Tax agency
58. Mormon State
60. Cheek make up
62. Chemistry prof Tara
67. Lazily
68. Not happily
69. Cheese
70. Toot
71. Strong metal
72. Island
73. Goofs
74. Don
75. Opp. of short
76. Down
1. Escudo
2. Rio de Janeiro
3. Unwell
4. Terra ___ (type of clay)
5. Nursing prof Priscilla
6. Location
7. Destination
8. Strengthen or hardener
9. Supersonic transport
10. Pedestal part
11. Negative battery terminal
12. Nursing prof Laura
13. What people do in their sleep
21. Boxer Muhammad
22. Japanese money
23. Legion
25. Green citrus fruit

BRUBAKER from pg. 6

New Pennsylvania and her D.S.N. at the University of Alabama-Birmingham. Utilizing these three degrees, she discovered a line of work that completely captivated her heart. “My real love in nursing was for old people and those with chronic problem,” she said. This category is one which many people simple ignore altogether. “A lot of times we just put people in a corner,” she said, when we can truly help them “connect to reality” by personal communication and extra loving attention.

In addition to the elderly, Brubaker also holds a passion for music. EMU’s Bach Festival, coordinated by Ken Nafziger, is one of her favorite non-academic programs. She also thoroughly enjoys Julia White’s Shenandoah Children’s Choir. Brubaker herself is an avid singer and is always moved by the awe-inspiring choir of EMU’s faculty, students, and staff when they join together in song.

Although Brubaker only holds the position of president for one semester, she sees the short period as a win-win situation. She gets to enjoy “paving the way for Loren, and making [EMU] a better place for his arrival.” She confidently said, “I’m very convinced we’ve chosen the right person.”

Sneaking Out in the Wee Hours:
This semester’s South Africa cross-cultural group left for the airport at 2 a.m. Monday morning, and a large group of loyal friends stayed up to see them off. The EMU website reported that the group of 30 students arrived safely in Johannesburg the same day.

Left top and bottom: Well-wishers gather close to the group’s charter bus just before departure.
Right: Joel Lehman and Steph Miller pause a moment before boarding the bus.
Photos by Josiah Garber

Sneaking Out in the Wee Hours:

This semester’s South Africa cross-cultural group left for the airport at 2 a.m. Monday morning, and a large group of loyal friends stayed up to see them off. The EMU website reported that the group of 30 students arrived safely in Johannesburg the same day.

Left top and bottom: Well-wishers gather close to the group’s charter bus just before departure.
Right: Joel Lehman and Steph Miller pause a moment before boarding the bus.
Photos by Josiah Garber